Thing that occurs in the Examination of r, is the Inclination shewn by the Administranimin the Peace of Europe, or at least the ritain, as long as it was possible. At first em allouishing that this Conduct should need What is it that has given the Cardinal De rest an Interest, so high a Reputation; is it tern for the Peace of Europe ? Shall we then s to his Praise, and in the same Breath vilify - for the fame Thing ? That Peace is of Confequence to a Trading Nation every body d yet by a Kind of Political Logick invented triats, the Intent of preferving our Peace is the Administration as as Crime, a flagrant, ent Crime. We fay, and we fay truly, that that the Dutch, have gained immensely in merce by the long Continuance of Peace. low from thence that Britain fusiers by Peace, Competitors in Trade will lose any Thing mag into a War? No Man who has any his Reputation, no Man who has a Value will say this; and therefore I think it may go farther and fay it ought to be, concluded. al Charge on a Ministry for loving and heral Charge on a Ministry for loving and g Peace is ridiculous and iniquitous, how ver it may be made appear.

cend to Particulars. It is objected that the tion have run into a long Series of Treaties, Circle of Negociations, neither agreeable to , nor conformable to the Interest of this Nauft be owned, that we have made a great this of late Years, but they were necessary which is evident from hence, that they pre-Peace, which otherwise we could not have by the Expences of the present War we may that nothing could justify the Forgoing the Impossibility of keeping it. Besides this Negociation did not proceed from any Acts militation. It proceeded from the Treaty Car, which left us few or no Friends, and tt TREATY which render'd Spain our imtay, and involved us in innumerable Dif-al of which are not adjusted to this Day. Iwo Thirds of the present Opposition aned in abetting one or other of these Two the necessary Consequences of some People's since; and, Secondly, that such Objections are no Weight, because their Conduct has and univerfally condemn'd.

Objection has been made as to our Behaviour in. It is faid we bore too long, we bore But this furely is faid without Foundation, ter that we were fo unwilling to enter into ut of any Respect to Spain, but out of Regard to ourselves. It was foreseen that if this War remain'd particular, as it does, we should not be able to get much, because the rest of Europe would grow jealous of our Conquests; and if it became general, that it would grow very expensive in the Profecution, and very uncertain in the Event. We were obliged to bear much, that we might appear to have just Cause to bear no more. If the Convention had not brought the Spaniards to confess themselves in the wrong, they might, on the Breaking out of the War have perswaded many of the European Powers that they were in the right: But by that their Mouths were flopp'd, and we see they are neither able to defend themselves, nor to engage others to defend them. But this is not all. There is the highest Probability that the very same People who charge the Ministry with having to long borne with the Spaniards, gave the Spaniards Reason to believe we must bear with them longer, and to a greater Degree; nay, that we must bear any Thing, rather than break with them. Thus they render'd our Negociations fruitless, and now would punish others because those Negociations were fruitless. Such is their Justice and

Since the Breaking out of the War it is much easier to point out and to compare the Conduct of both Parties. On one Side there has been Speeching, Writing, and Raving for vigorous Measures, and at the same Time nothing done to promote but rather to cross and to impede them: On the other, all imaginable Pains have been taken to protect our Trade, to annoy the Enemy, and to hinder this Quarrel of ours from spreading the Flame of War thro Christendom; and in all these we have had the utmost Success. There cannot be any thing of more Importance during a War abroad, than that the Nation should be quiet at home. Towards this what have the Patriots contributed? Have they not cajol'd the Merchants, tamper'd with the Seamen, inflam'd the City with false Reports, and spread a Spirit of Diffatisfaction, as themselves stile it, thro' the Country, to the utmost of their Power? In the mean time. the Ministry fent Admiral Vernon to the West-Indies, to make the Spaniards fenfible of our Resentment; Admiral Haddeck to the Mediterranean, to convince them of their own Weaknes: When Occasion requir'd, Admiral Ogle fail'd to give the utmost Weight to our Arguments in one Part of America, and it is not impossible but something as confiderable will be done by another Squadron; at least it will not be the Fault of the Administration if there is not. In short, we owe to the Ministry that we are secure at Home from all Fear of Invasion, and that we are in a Condition to do whatever we think expedient abroad; and it is owing to the Malecontents in a great measure that we have this War upon our Hands, and at the fame Time Civil Diffentions in our Bowels. From hence let the ELECTORS of GREAT BRITAIN conclude whether the In s or the Out's are True Pa-

On the Subject of our Allies abroad, it is notorious that we have had Objections of a contrary Nature advanced with equal Petulance. Sometimes those at the Helm have been charged with doing too much for Allies, at other times with doing too little. They gave it feems, which they need not have done, Tuscany, Parma and Placentia to the Infant of Spain; and fince that, which they should not have done, they have suffered the same Infant to conquer Naples and Sicily, and France at the same time to acquire Lorrain, all at the Expence of our Natural Allies the House of Austria. But this is faid only, and never can be prov'd. What we did for Don Carlos was done in consequence of the Quadruple Alliance, and at this Day we reap this Fruit of it, that we enjoy a Free Trade in his Dominions, which we did not when they were in other Hands. As to the entring into the War with France and Spain about the Affair of Poland, besides its laying the Administration open to various Reflections on account of our having really no Concern therein, it would have been of little Use even to the House of Austria, for it must have protracted the War, and by degrees have changed the whole System of Affairs, no way to the Advantage of his Imperial Majefly's Family. Whereas things stand now in so clear a Light, that we can espouse the Cause of the House of Austria with all the Equity imaginable, and with all rational Hopes of Success.

Another pretended Ground of Accufation hath been the Hanover Alliance; as if in making that, we acted directly opposite to what we now declare to be right. But are we not to regulate our Conduct by the Conduct of others towards us? If we then arm'd in conjunction with one Branch of the House of Bourbon against the Emperor, it was not till He had entred into offensive and defensive Alliances prejudicial to our Interests, to the Peace and Balance of Power in Eurape, with another Branch of the House of Bourbon; in confequence of which an Attempt was made to wrest Gibraliar out of our Hands. But when his Imperial Majesty disingaged himself from those unnatural and destructive Measures, we readily renewed our old Friendship and Respect for his August House, and entred into those Stipulations which we think ourselves bound to fulfill. Thus, when this Matter is listed to the Bottom, we see that the Administration have regarded Foreign Powers, and either encouraged or croffed their Schemes, just as those Schemes coincided with or ran counter to the Interests of Great Britain, which was precifely their Duty, and to which they would have been wanting had they afted other-

But how did the Malecontents act all this while? Did they not earnestly espouse the Cause and cabal with the Ministers of every Court with which we had any Difference? Did they not on all Occasions, in all Shapes, and with a Zeal not to be expressed, join themselves to the Emperor, as soon as slighting Us he join'd with Spain? Did they not justify Palm's Memorial, tho' it appealed from the King to the Nation? Did they not then ridicule as groundless those Applehentions which now appear to be just? When We closed again with the Emperor, did they not then defert him, and give a new Turn to their Clamours? Have they not in all Respects perfished in the same Conduct since ? nay, do they not perfift in it still ? Was not the Anti minister, the ATLAS who supports the Opposition, busy at a neighbouring Court when those Fleets sail'd which afforded the Tools of Faaion fo great Fewel for Diffurbance ? Befides, were not the most accurate Circumstances they could obtain transmitted to bim for the Use of that Court, in order to frustrate the GLORIOUS VIEWS of our Administration! Let them not deceive themselves, and we will take care they shall not deceive us. Behold then, impartial Reader, if these dirs of theirs have the dir of Patriotifus, or must we admit their Claims at the Expence of our Senses?

Thus I have laid before you a Series of Facts, in support of the short Address I presented lately to the Elestors of Great Britain, and I hope they will not be esteem'd the less certain because they fall immediately under your own Knowledge. I do not refer you here, and there, for Evidence; or turn you over for Proofs to Places where I know you cannot have Access; much less do I expect that Suggestions, Infinuations, or Stories from Persons not nam'd, should be look'd on as Testimonies. I appeal to Transactions which have passed before your Eyes. In respect to the Cause of my Appeal; the Elections are already commenced, let me then fay aWord or two as to them. Were you not told, confidently told, the lateParliament would be continued, and that there would be no Election at all? On the other hand, have you not been told from the Throne, that his Majesty had a particular Satisfaction in taking the Sense of his Subjects on his own Administration, by their present Choice of a new Representative? Be careful then, my Countrymen, on this momentous Occafion, that your true Sense be known by the Choice you make, and then the Dispute will be quickly decided, who are and who are not PATRIOTS.

EXTRACT of an Advertisement from the CRAFTSMAN, April 11, 1741.

WHEREAS in this Paper of the 16th Day of Fe-bruary, 1740. there was inferted the following Paragraphs:

Nothing is more necessary to a Squadron of Ships, which are defign'd for real Service, than to supply them with good and wholesome Provisions, especially in long Voyages, and fultry Climates.—I hope therefore the fariclest Care is taken as to this Particular, and that the Orders from above are punctually obey'd at the Victualling Office; tho' a Rumour flies about, that fome Complaints of this Kind have been lately made ; even inform'd that th will undertake to prove that great Quantities of Beef and Pork actually flunk before it was fent abroad. . This, if true, must be owing either to the Badness of the Commodities, when bought up, to the Want of · Skill in Salting them, or to some corrupt Gains made by Those concern'd in the Managemennt of our Vi-

· I have heard one Man declare that having contracted to supply the Navy with a large Number of Bullocks, and neglecting to make the usual Present, upon such Occasions, the Cattle were thrown back upon his Hands, under Pretence that they were not fit for his Majesty's Service; upon which He privately employ'd another Man to offer the very same Oxen, and by tipping a Bank-Note of Two Hundred Pounds into proper Hands, they were reported to be very ' good Mear, and accordingly teceived.'

Which faid Paragraphs have given great and just Offence to the Gentlemen concern'd in the Direction and Management of the Office for Victualling his Majefty's Navy, as it carry'd an Infinuation of Neglect or Corruption in that Office, and as it might tend to discourage Sailors from ferving on board his Majesty's Navy, to the great Injury to the Publick and

And whereas an Information has been fince granted against me, as the Publisher of a scandalous Libel, for printing the faid Paragraphs;

And whereas the Commissioners of the faid Office have often proposed to pardon me, (as far as in them lay) if I would produce or acquaint them with the Name of the Person, or Persons, who were the Authors of the faid fcandalous Paragraphs;

I do hereby publickly declare, that I received the same by the Penny-Post, in a Letter, and that I never knew the Author, or Writer, or Director thereof, nor the Hand in which it is written ; and that I have deliver'd the same Letter to the said Commissioners, in order to empower them to find out (if they can) the Writer thereof,

And I declare that I had no other Foundation or Authority for inferting the faid Paragraphs befides the faid Anonymous Letter; that I was greatly imposed on thereby; and that I am heartily forry for the great Offence I may improdently have given; I do heartily beg Pardon of the Publick, and of the Gentlemen concern'd in the Direction or Management of the faid Office, and defire of them that they would, in Compassion to me, (tho' I have thus deceived the Publick through a great Inadvertency) flay the Trial of the faid Information; and I do faithfully promife that I will do all in my Power to affift in detecting the base Author of so dangerous a Scandal; and will be more cautious hereafter of inferting any Articles of News for which I cannot produce the Author of Authors.

Tho' 'tis confirm'd that the Marquis D'Antin the French Admiral is dead, yet we hear he dy'd a natural Death, of an Illness contracted in his Voyage, and not of a Duel as was given out. Yesterday's French Mail brought Letters from France which fay, that the late Marquis d'Antin left behind him 3 Ships of his Squadron, and 6 more under the Chevalier De Nelmon, with Orders that the three of his Squadron, after fome Stay, should follow him to Europe; one of which, call d the Bourbon, of 76 Guns, and upwards of 650 Men, founder'd off of Cape Fini-fterre, and but about 13 of the Crew faved. The Survivors fay that they were at Cartagena, that the People were fickly, and in great Want of Provisions, &c. The same Mail brings Letters from Cadiz of the 18th of April, N. S. which mention that Admiral Delano failed from thence the 15th Ditto, with 9 large Men of War, and under their Convoy 6 Register-ships, viz. 2 for Cartagena, 2 for Honduras, 1 for Maraicabo, and 1 for Vera Cruz. Remaining in Port, 6 large Men of War, 6 of the largest Ships of the Flota to be fitted out as Men of War, and the two Register-ships for Buenos Ayres. Also that an English Man of Was had taken and carried into Gibraltar two Prizes, one a Dutch Ship from Puerto Rico, with the Effects or Cargo of the N.S. del Pillar el Rosario y Santo Antonio, which was some time ago lost at Puerto Rico coming from Maraicabo for Cadiz: The other also a Dutch Ship loaden with Provisions, &c. from Cadiz for Car-

An Imperial Ship, loaden with Sugar and Tobacco, from Vera Cruz and the Havana, was arrived at Lisbon to unload there.

Mr. Turner, Purser of his Majesty's Sloop the Wolf. is arrived here from France, and fays he in the Ship abovefaid came from Donna Maria Bay the 22d of February, with an Express from Admiral Vernon, but had the Misfortune of running ashore in the Windward Passage, and was taken up by the Marquis D'Antin, and brought to Brest, with the rest of the Sloop's Company: He farther says, that before he left Admiral Vernon he had fent a Sloop to Port Lewis, to tell the French Squadron that if they did not be gone from thence he would come and make them a Vifit. The French fir'd at the faid Sloop, and would not let her speak with 'em, so the Sloop return'd to Admiral Vernon: On which he wrote a Letter to the Marquis d'Antin, and fent it by his Majesty's Ship the Shoreham, Capt. Boscawen, who went on board the Marquis, and deliver'd the Letter, on which the Marquis fail'd the next Day. Mr. Turner fays, Admiral Vernon had 300 Men employ'd in cutting Fascines, to put abpard the Transports to carry to Cartagena, for the better Covering his Men when he attacks that Place : And that the Admiral had upwards of 200 Sail with him to perform that Service. The Admirals and all the Men were in great Spirits when he left them, and abounded
